Ensuring the quality of the 2010 Census

Quality Assurance Operations

The Census Bureau may call or visit a small percentage of households to:

- clarify answers about the number of people living at an address.
- verify that households classified as vacant or nonexistent were unoccupied on April 1st.
- confirm the geographic location of responses, such as those given over the phone or on Be Counted Forms.
- resolve suspected duplicate addresses.

If your household is one of the small percentage that is re-interviewed or visited, please take a few minutes with the census taker, and help us ensure the quality of the 2010 Census.
